

Literacy Age-related Learning Opportunities for C1	Relevant Learning Descriptors
Children should have the opportunity: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • To develop a feeling for the rhythm of speaking and listening in different situations, e.g. during classroom talk, conversations, stories etc. • To experience a rich and ambitious vocabulary, exploring connections between new and known words. • To understand that writing is talk on paper, running left to right and top to bottom. • To develop good phonological awareness: recognise and identify alliterations and rhymes, segment and blend orally. • To articulate their experiences and recollections orally in narrative form. • To learn the initial code: recognise and write simple sound/spelling correspondence for lower and uppercase letters. • To write words with phonologically plausible spellings • To read words consisting of sound/spelling correspondences that they know • To learn to write and read some simple but very common words containing unfamiliar sound/spelling correspondences. • To develop a feeling for a sentence, a word and a letter. • To practice composing, writing and reading simple text. 	Beginning Literacy Children can orally communicate their ideas, thoughts and memories in a logical and structured way to make the meaning clear for the listener. They know several verses/poems by heart. Children can ‘read’ familiar text such as sentences from a known story or a favourite story book. They can use their knowledge of sound/spelling correspondence to read and write simple sentences formed of initial code, in lowercase. When writing, their spellings are phonetically plausible and they use some punctuation. They can read what they have written themselves, e.g. during shared or independent writing. Book Band: Pink, red, yellow, blue, green Sounds Write: Initial code and Extended Code Units (first vowel graphemes)

Literacy Age-related Learning Opportunities for C2	Relevant Learning Descriptors
---	--------------------------------------

Children should have the opportunity: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • To refine their feeling for the rhythm of speaking and listening in different situations, e.g. during classroom talk, conversations, stories etc. • To participate in recitation, singly and in groups • To refine their articulation of thoughts, recollections and experiences orally in coherent narrative form • To experience a rich and ambitious vocabulary, exploring orthography and connections between new and known words • To learn extended code, e.g. consonant digraphs and blends, multiple spellings of vowel sounds • To learn to read and write common and personal words and words of interest containing unfamiliar sound/spelling correspondences. • To develop a feeling for structuring more complex and longer sentences, e.g. using pronouns to replace nouns, conjunctions etc. • To explore the functions of words within sentences. • To learn how to use capital letters and full stops in their writing, and to recognise and identify some additional punctuation, e.g. question/exclamation marks, commas. • To practice composing, writing and reading (both independently and aloud) text at an appropriately challenging level and length. 	Early Literacy Children can orally communicate their ideas, thoughts and memories coherently and appropriately for the listener/situation. They begin to be confident to recite alone. Children can compose and write short, simple texts on a familiar topic, using extended code and common words containing unfamiliar sound/spelling correspondences. They add detail and description, drawing on their reading experiences. Children use some longer, more complex sentences, using punctuation to delineate sentences and identify questions or exclamations, although language and sentence structure may still be close to speech. They can read their own and others' writing, including longer texts and some different genres, e.g. poems, information or letters. They begin to self correct and develop some automaticity, e.g. not following text with a finger when reading; writing familiar words without sounding out. Book Band: Yellow, blue, green, orange, turquoise, purple, gold, white Sounds Write: Continuation of Extended Code
---	--

Literacy Age-related Learning Opportunities for C3	Relevant Learning Descriptors
Children should have the opportunity:	Developing Literacy

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • To explain their reasoning and their work • To recite poems/verses alone; to take part in short plays as part of a group • To experience a rich and ambitious vocabulary, exploring the meaning of new words, their morphology and their synonyms • To practice reading and writing the extended code, using their knowledge to formulate correct spellings and pronunciation • To practise writing and reading in cursive script • To learn common spelling conventions (e.g. y -> ies; es plurals; CV add ing) and homophones (there/their/they're) • To explore the morphology of words (e.g. suffixes, prefixes, stem words) • To identify the function of words in a sentence, e.g. noun, verb, adjective, adverb • To learn to use a range of punctuation marks • To respond to, illustrate and discuss both shared and independent reading • To practice finding information and making inferences from text • To practice writing longer and more complex sentences and pieces of writing, • To practice using resources such as dictionaries, word lists, wall displays etc 	Children can explain their thinking and talk about their work. They recite alone and perform speaking parts in short plays. Children can compose, write and structure longer pieces of writing in familiar formats and for different purposes, using resources for support if prompted. They write in developing cursive script, using their knowledge of the extended code and morphology to write plausibly (if not always accurately) spelling familiar words correctly. Children use a range of punctuation to support meaning, for example inverted commas for direct speech. Children read familiar types of material with confidence, such as short chapter books with simple narrative shapes and illustrations. They self select some reading material, moving between familiar and unfamiliar texts in their choices and including information books, comics/graphic novels and age-appropriate magazines/newspapers. They read mostly silently, but at a pace similar to speech. Book band: Turquoise, purple, gold, white, lime, brown, grey Sounds Write: Continuation of Extended Code and word analysis.
---	--

Literacy Age-related Learning Opportunities for C4	Relevant Learning Descriptors
Children should have the opportunity:	Progressing Literacy Children talk, read aloud and recite fluently and with expression, performing several lines individually in a play. They

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • To develop a feeling for expressive recitation, including accurate interpretation of punctuation, and the experience of alliteration and rhythm • To experience a rich and ambitious vocabulary: exploring new words in a range of contexts and investigating etymology and morphology • To perform in a play, speaking several lines individually • To practise writing neatly in cursive script with a pen • To read text in a range of formats and genres, at an appropriate level and length, including to complete tasks in some areas of the curriculum, interpreting illustrations and features such as text boxes • To identify, summarise and begin to discuss key information from text read independently when prompted • To connect what they read to their prior and developing knowledge and understanding • To explore aspects of their responses to different texts and to learn some literary terms for features of both fiction and poetry • To write in different styles/registers and formats for different purposes and audiences, using careful choice of vocabulary, varying sentence and text structure. • To learn to identify a range of parts of speech and to use them in their writing (e.g. adjectives, adverbs, prepositions) • To practise using different tenses accurately in their writing • To practise using a range of punctuation consistently and accurately in their writing 	read and write independently with some confidence, reading and writing unfamiliar words correctly using a range of strategies to self correct and work out spellings, pronunciation and meaning. Children read silently, increasing their pace and stamina, reading longer and more demanding texts with enjoyment. They are able to identify and select information relevant to a topic and verbally summarise their ideas about what they have read or written. Children are becoming more active readers, beginning to ask and answer questions about how text is constructed, and how they respond to it, and starting to go beyond purely literal interpretation and understanding. This understanding begins to show in their writing, where they adjust and develop language and content to suit their intended audience. Children write more quickly in cursive and their writing is legible. They maintain a clear focus on relevant content whilst writing more extensively, using a range of accurate tenses and punctuation. Book Band: Lime, brown, grey, dark blue, dark red
--	---

Literacy Age-related Learning Opportunities for C5	Relevant Learning Descriptors
Children should have the opportunity:	Competent Literacy

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • To practise reading aloud, reciting, presenting and performing • To be exposed to challenging and ambitious vocabulary: exploring unfamiliar words in a range of contexts and investigating etymology and morphology • To write at length across the curriculum, with scaffolding and prompting that supports them to plan, structure and edit their work • To learn to use a wide range of punctuation accurately and practise using it in their writing • To explore the accurate use of a range of verb forms and prepositions • To read a wide range of texts for pleasure: different text-types and genres, literature from their own and other literary heritages • To have time to read, both self-selected and directed material, in school and at home, independently and with others, and to discuss what they have read • To share their own and others' recommendations for reading material • To read for a range of purposes across the curriculum, developing their understanding of what they read using a variety of strategies and resources, practising extracting key information, summarising and discussing what they have read, and justifying their views and opinions • To learn some technical language for literary analysis, including literary terms and devices. 	Children can read aloud, recite longer pieces and perform a speaking part in a play to the school community fluently, with understanding, with attention to punctuation and with expression. They present their work from across the curriculum to their peers, maintaining a focus on the topic, summarising main ideas and giving key details. When listening to presentations, they can note down key information or important details. Children write fluently and legibly in cursive script. Their spelling is generally accurate and they use a dictionary or thesaurus when needed. Children use a greater range of punctuation and text structuring accurately and to support meaning. They plan, structure, edit and proof-read their writing, adapting for the audience, drawing on their reading experience and using organisational and presentational devices. Children approach diverse texts with confidence, selecting from a wide range of fiction, poetry, plays, non-fiction, reference and textbooks. They read independently and silently and the speed of their reading increases beyond that of speech. Children discuss, in an increasingly mature way and using some of the language of literary analysis, their understanding of what they read, asking questions, making inferences and connections, and identifying how the author uses language, structure and presentation to convey meaning and influence the reader. Book band: Grey, dark blue, dark red, black, black+
---	---

Literacy Age-related Learning Opportunities for C6	Relevant Learning Descriptors
Children should have the opportunity:	Secure Literacy

- To practise presenting, reciting and performing to their class
- To practice listening to information presented both by the teacher and by their peers, taking notes, asking questions and discussing ideas and opinions
- To take part in drama rehearsal, production and performance on a small scale
- To experience a rich and ambitious vocabulary: exploring new words in a range of contexts and investigating etymology and morphology
- To practice reading and writing across the curriculum at length and in depth, for different purposes and in different structures and genres
- To practice different reading styles for different purposes: e.g. skimming and scanning, editing and proofreading
- To deepen their understanding of grammar and the function of words and phrases in sentences
- To read a wide range of texts for pleasure: different text-types and genres, literature from their own and other literary heritages
- To have time to read, both self-selected and directed material, in school and at home, independently and with others, and to discuss what they have read
- To explore the analysis of text using a range of technical grammatical language, and some literary terms.
- To build understanding and make meaning through inference, giving a rationale providing evidence for their conclusions.

Children can give a presentation of their independent work to the class on a familiar topic, using notes and answering questions. They can take both brief and detailed notes on what they hear and read, summarising by identifying main ideas, and giving supporting details and examples. Children take an active role in drama exercises, beginning to practise self-expression. Children are confident writers who enjoy writing in different genres. They begin to develop the complexity of their writing through setting a mood and tone, varying sentence length and structure and using more sophisticated transitional phrases. Children's writing is securely structured, organised and punctuated, with attention paid to the purpose, audience and genre. They are familiar with several formal text structures, such as business letters and writing up a science experiment. Editing and proof-reading is becoming more independent, with children making some revisions autonomously and identifying and correcting many spelling, punctuation and grammar errors. Children are avid readers who make choices from a wide range of material, reading confidently, independently and with ease. They cross check different cues, and use their prior knowledge and understanding of phonics to decode unknown words without impeding fluency and ensuring good comprehension. Children are developing strong reading preferences, and showing interest in new authors and genres. They are able to make comparisons and connections within and across different texts. Children have a grasp of the basic language of literary analysis, and use it in their discussions and writing about what they have read.

Literacy Age-related Learning Opportunities for C7	Relevant Learning Descriptors
Children should have the opportunity: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • To practise presenting, reciting and performing to their class • To practice listening to information presented both by the teacher and by their peers, taking notes, asking questions and discussing ideas and opinions • To take part in the writing, rehearsal, production and performance of drama on a small scale • To experience a rich and ambitious vocabulary: exploring new words in a range of contexts and investigating etymology and morphology • To practice reading and writing across the curriculum at length, in depth and across multiple texts, for different purposes and in different structures and genres • To practice drafting, redrafting, editing, proofing and 'publishing' their work • To practice different reading styles for different purposes: e.g. skimming and scanning, editing and proofreading • To read a wide range of texts for pleasure: different text-types and genres, literature from their own and other literary heritages, and that ranges from historical to modern. • To have time to read, both self-selected and directed material, in school and at home, independently and with others, and to discuss and write about what they have read • To explore the detailed analysis of text using a range of technical language to describe literary and linguistic devices 	Proficient Literacy Students can give a presentation on a prepared assigned topic, using notes and answering questions. They can record important information about what they have read or heard in a more organised and systematic fashion. Students perform dialogue, skits and short plays, including those that they have written themselves, often based on books or other material they have studied across the curriculum. They recite a wide range of poetry, including poems and poets of their own preference. Students can write at length, shaping and developing writing across a wide range of genres, choosing language and features that are appropriate for the purpose and audience of their writing, and developing their own style. They write on a wide range of topics, resourcing and utilising information and ideas from different external sources. Students' writing is grammatically correct, their punctuation is more sophisticated, they spell most words used in everyday language correctly, and they draw on their wider knowledge of language and spelling to work out more complex words. They can follow a process of drafting, re-drafting, editing and responding to their own writing. Students are self-motivated, confident and experienced readers, who pursue their own interests through their reading. They can tackle challenging texts across the curriculum, reading thoughtfully, using a wide range of comprehension strategies and making inferences from complex layers of meaning. Students use reference resources to assist independent study and research, including using multiple texts on a specific subject to locate, analyse and synthesise information. They use dictionaries, thesauruses and etymological dictionaries

	to support precise and accurate writing. Students have an understanding of the concept of meter in poetry, and are able to use some technical language to talk about the patterns they can hear. They have a wide range of technical vocabulary for both oral and written literary analysis, including literary terms and linguistic analysis.
--	--

Literacy Age-related Learning Opportunities for C8	Relevant Learning Descriptors
Children should have the opportunity: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • To practise presenting, reciting and performing to a wider audience, including their own work • To learn the language and structures of formal debate, and explore taking part • To experience a rich and ambitious vocabulary: exploring new words in a range of contexts and investigating etymology and morphology • To practice reading and writing across the curriculum at length, in depth, for different purposes and in different structures and genres • To practice drafting, redrafting, editing, proofing and 'publishing' their work for a real or imagined audience • To read a wide range of texts for interest and pleasure: different text-types and genres, literature from their own and other literary heritages, and that ranges from historical to modern. • To have time to read, both self-selected and directed material, in school and at home, independently and with others, and to discuss and write about what they have read • To explore formal and non-formal language structures, devices and vocabulary 	Mature, Independent Literacy Students can present an independent research project to a wider audience, answering questions and responding to comments about their work. They perform in a full length play to an audience of friends, family and the wider public. Students take part in structured debates, presenting arguments that both tally and disagree with their own opinions. They are able to code-switch appropriately in both spoken and written language, using standard English consistently and competently in their writing and having a secure control of complex grammatical structures. Students are highly competent and developed writers who have a recognisable voice and use writing as a tool for thinking. They communicate clearly, effectively and imaginatively, selecting and adapting tone, style, register and structure for different forms, purposes and audiences. Students write with an audience in mind, manipulating and controlling their writing to achieve an intended effect on their reader. They use ambitious vocabulary for purpose and effect. Students are enthusiastic and reflective readers, who can access a wide range of texts to pursue their interests. They can explain and discuss their understanding of what they have read and

- To begin to read critically and reflectively, exploring a wide range of technical terms for literary analysis
- To compare and contrast reading and information from a variety of sources, discussing orally and in writing their preferences, views and opinions.

evaluate evidence from a variety of sources. Students can identify and give explicit explanations for the effect of text on the reader, analysing the impact of authorial techniques and devices with accurate technical vocabulary. They are able to question and admire aspects of content, form and function, comparing ideas and perspectives and how these are conveyed.